

Chiropractic Care for ADHD

Correction of vertebral subluxation through chiropractic adjustments has been shown to result in improved nervous system function and improvement in ADHD symptoms.

Studies and case reports have demonstrated a link between improved behaviors and symptoms of children diagnosed ADHD while under chiropractic care. Gentle spinal adjustments and therapies are typically performed while under chiropractic care, and many patients and parents of patients have reported improvements in their children's diagnosed ADHD symptoms and behaviors.

Some of the Research

- 1 The Chiropractic Care of Children With Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder: A Retrospective Case Series
- 2 Behavioral and Learning Changes Secondary to Chiropractic Care to Reduce Subluxations in a Child with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder
- 3 Improvement in Attention in Patients Undergoing Network Spinal Analysis: A Case Series Using Objective Measures of Attention
- 4 Chiropractic Management of a Child with ADD/ADHD
- 5 An Introduction and Review of the Diagnosis and Treatment of Attention Deficit Hyperactive Disorder
- 6 Successful Care of a Young Female with ADD/ADHD & Vertebral Subluxation
- 7 ADD/ADHD Chiropractic Case Studies
- 8 The Relationship of Craniosacral Examination Findings in Grade School Children with Developmental Problems
- 9 An Evaluation of Chiropractic Manipulation as a Treatment of Hyperactivity in Children
- 1 Manual Therapy in Children: Proposals for an Etiologic Model - Effects of
- 0 Uppercervical Adjustments on Children with Learning Disorders
- 1 Developmental Delay Syndromes and Chiropractic
- 1
- 2 Prospective Cohort of ADHD Patients Under Chiropractic Care